

Sonoma State University
Dean, School of Education

Sonoma State University (SSU), north of San Francisco in California's wine country, drives the economic, cultural, and educational engines of the North Bay. Guided by core values of diversity and social justice, sustainability and environmental inquiry, connectivity and community engagement, and adaptability and responsiveness, SSU delivers high-quality education through innovative programs. As a member of the 23-campus California State University system, SSU is proud to serve a diverse student population on its beautiful campus, environmental preserves, and satellite centers.

The School of Education offers Teacher Credential programs in Multiple Subject, Single Subjects, and Special Education. The Early Childhood Studies major prepares students to offer high-quality education and social services to all children and families. Also offered are advanced credentials and master's programs in Reading and Language; Administrative Services; Curriculum, Teaching and Learning; Early Childhood Education; Special Education; and Educational Leadership. The School's faculty and staff take pride in offering individualized and small group experiences for students in rigorous, focused, personalized, and highly regarded programs enhanced by carefully chosen field placements.

The Dean of the School of Education serves as the chief academic and administrative officer of the School. The Dean sets and articulates the vision for the School within Sonoma State University's mission and goals, creates new opportunities for the School and the University, and directs its growth and development through shared academic governance. The Dean is responsible for promoting and improving the quality and effectiveness of the School's programs, including all aspects of teaching and learning; research, scholarship, and creative activity; and community engagement. The Dean provides leadership for assessment, accreditation, and metrics related to graduation and retention. The Dean is also responsible for fund diversification, including fundraising and development, as well as extended education programs in alignment with the goals of the School of Education.
